About the Line

One of the most magical creatures I’ve known was my great-grandmother, Fairy Edith Miller. Her name alone set her apart from the crowd, but the childlike wonder that she carried until her last day is what made her so special. Some of my fondest memories from childhood are a result of spending time with her in the summers. From learning how to climb a tree in her backyard, feeding the ducks at the reservoir and watching her slide down the curly slide at the park. Another favorite memory is stopping along the road to pick wildflowers and Queen Anne’s Lace that we would place in vases with water and food coloring, then be amazed as the tiny flowers started to change colors. And every time I smell a lilac, I am instantly taken back to her back yard, filled with gorgeous, sweet smelling blossoms in the Spring. On top of all of this, she also holds my first memories of quilting. Her tiny, perfect hand stitches still amaze me to this day. This collection is my tribute to her in hopes to capture and pass down her magic for generations to come.
